There are two types of people in this world, those who quickly see that a picture of a cat is funny, and those who never get it. It is because the first group recognize the funny, while the second group do not. Windows 7 Ultimate is the Windows version which was originally released by Microsoft in 2007, and since then it has been used as the core operating system for any PC. In this tutorial, we will teach you how to customize the Metro UI interface of Windows 7 Ultimate so it will feel more like Windows 8 instead of Windows 7. Choosing a color for a Metro UI Windows 7 interface

The original Windows 7 has only one color scheme, which is the orange color, for the entire interface. If we have to choose one, it's probably the one which you will use the most often. Windows 7 is a very straightforward Windows version with the black and grey scheme. If we want to make Windows 7 a bit more attractive and attractive, we have to change the color of the main interface or we will not be able to change anything else. And by default, Windows 7 has a blue color for its interface, which is something we do not want to see when we take a look at it for the first time. To change the background color to a custom one, just open the "Color and Appearance" option from the "Settings" screen. Here we can choose the color of the overall interface or the specific parts of it. We can change the back color, the border color, the menu bar color, the text color, the tab text color, as well as the taskbar color. If you have the 3D desktops enabled, you will see an additional option for the titlebar color. Cracked Photo to
